Meredith Fern Illustration

As a child Meredith loved watching animated movies, pausing over and over on a single frame until she could recreate the image in my sketchbook. She never quit drawing, painting, sketching, building, papercutting, even for a day. After graduating from Boise State University with degrees in illustration and music, Meredith found ways to happily work in both areas, filling her days with graphic design work and Mom-ing, filling her evenings and baby nap times with illustration, and playing in the community bands and orchestras. Meredith loves to dabble with paint, paper, clay, fabric, pencils, pens, her iPad, anything! Most importantly - more important than any medium, she tries to create art with love, light, and hope. She tries to find the light that can sometimes feel extinguished. Meredith tries to capture the vibrancy of a life well lived, of dreams sought out, of hope rekindled and never-ending. If any of Meredith's work, in some small way, helps to connect people to their loved ones or their hopes or their dreams, she knows she has done her job.

Meredith lives with her husband/personal Prince Charming, their vibrantly imaginative and loving seven-year-old daughter, mischievously sparkling and extremely funny four-year-old boy, two Siamese cats, two goldendoodles, two beta fish, and, of course, an axolotl. Meredith still believes in unicorns.

Mila's Art Corner

Mila's Art Corner creates fantastical stories about adventures, friends, a fairy or two and plants. Lots of plants. In her most recent comic called Tiny Ones, it focuses on a flower spirit and two siblings that wander aimlessly through a deep and mysterious forest. Apart from telling stories through comics or books, she loves to explore different types of mediums, and styles. She's dabbled in printmaking, ceramics, and pop-up art. For Mila's Art Corner the real magic is pairing art with fantasy and fostering the mind in using its full range of imagination that inspire these whimsical worlds.

Mitsuko Illustrations

Mitsuko Lili is an artist from Boise, Idaho. She attended Boise State University graduating in 2018 with a BFA in Illustration where she learned a variety of skills that are still implement in her work today, including realistic portraiture techniques and printmaking methods. While her art aims to visualize a narrative related to practicing mindfulness, the purpose of her work is to center the viewer and find something that may have been missed upon first glance.

The detail orientated nature of her art, as well as the use of contrasting and vibrant colors, is enticing and it forces the viewer to look carefully and slowly. Her art is associated with the present day, and the intention of each piece is to evoke a memory response from the viewer that may have been forgotten through time.

The Spooky Dinosaur

Spooky Dinosaur is the sobriquet of visual artist [redacted]. As an eternal being going through his second play-through of life on Earth (gaining immortality his first time through) he reached the inevitable heat death of the universe, and time traveled back to the time of the dinosaurs. They were fun, but now, after endless millennia of goings on he is trying his hand at the artist life, doing whatever art comes to mind. Working mostly in watercolour, monsters and surreal works seem to be a favorite, things that ancient dark beings ask him to draw. He has a comic in the works and is hoping to continue this path even further, before that heat death thing happens.
